Santa Clara is California's oldest university! It is located in Santa Clara, the fruit and vegetable packing and preserving center of the West, 43 miles south of San Francisco.

It was founded on March 19th, 1851, on the site of the old Mission Santa Clara, which the Franciscan Padres established in the winter of 1777.

The University occupies a beautiful and well designed campus of approximately 15 acres, with many fine buildings grouped in a series of quadrangles around the historic old Mission church. The institution is conducted by the Jesuit Order.
